

*Spoilers Redacted*

In this book the main character is called Frank Benson. He was sick with Tuberculosis (TB) and after he recovered he wanted to prove he was still useful and able to help, so he joined the army. He was a radio operator, sending messages using Morse Code. He got a message saying that the people going to replace the coastwatchers were needed elsewhere, so he had to become a coast watcher on the Solomon Islands, where every insect and bug could kill you. You will never know what is lurking around each corner. This is a place where trust means everything...

This was a great book. It made you feel as though you were Frank. My favourite part of the story is when a plane flies above Frank and he [REDACTED]

I think kids aged 9 - 13 who enjoy reading about war and history will all really enjoy this book.

Casey, Aged 12, Papamoa