

*SPOILERS REDACTED*

I liked this book because it had lots of suspense and parts that really got you hooked. I think that this book would be great for nine and ten year olds that like war and mystery stories because it is rousing and really gets your attention. I think that the author used lots of descriptive words that easily get you immersed in the contents of the book.

I think that the funniest part of this book was when Esau saw a crocodile and said "Lunch". I feel like the saddest part was when A'ata [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. I consider the best part to be when they find the [REDACTED].

My favourite parts are when Frank reads his code book because all the codes are odd, interesting and funny, including the passwords, which are hilarious; for example, one of them would say "Fish" and the other would say "Chips".
